

RUMOR NOW SAYS WAR IS DECLARED

News to This Effect Came From San Francisco Late This Afternoon.

MARKET PRICES SENT SOARING

Cotton Jumps a Dollar, and Wheat Goes to Eighty-Nine Cents in Milwaukee—Activity Is Evident.

(Special by Scripps-McLae.)
San Francisco, Jan. 13.—Word has been received by the Pacific cable that war has been declared between Russia and Japan and that hostilities have commenced. This was first received in a rumor and later confirmed. It is thought the first battle will be fought in Korea.
Prices Up
New Orleans, Jan. 13.—Owing to the declaration of war cotton went up a dollar at one swoop on the cotton exchange here today.
Wheat Up
Milwaukee, Jan. 13.—Wheat touched the 89 3/4 mark in this city owing to the news war has been declared. The greatest excitement prevails on the exchange in consequence.

New York Notified
New York, Jan. 13.—The declaration of war has disturbed the markets here and the greatest excitement prevails.

London Waiting
London, Jan. 13.—The announcement that war has been declared has not yet been confirmed, but the rumor has caused almost a panic. The bulletin boards are being closely watched.

Story in the Pacific. The outlook is apparently warlike.

RUMORS ANNOY ROOT.

Secretary Declares There Have Been No Preparations for War.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Secretary Root has issued the following statement regarding the isthmian policy of the administration:

"The publication of news indicating that the government is preparing to send troops to the isthmus to carry on military operations against Colombia has been the source of considerable annoyance to the executive and to the war department. No state of war exists between the two countries; no preparation for war is being made. It is not believed by the president, nor by the secretary of state that any occasion for the employment of troops on the isthmus is likely to arise.

"It is difficult to believe that the authorities in Bogota can be so blinded by passion and prejudice as to declare war against us, and even if this ridiculous step should be taken by Colombia this government would be in no haste to respond to her challenge."

Reyes Would Like to Stay.

New York, Jan. 13.—Gen. Reyes, the special Colombian envoy, who has been in Washington for some time presenting the cause of Colombia, has arrived in New York from Washington. It is understood that, while Gen. Reyes is going home because he apparently regards his mission at Washington as having failed, he would prefer to remain here until the senate acts upon the canal treaty.

THE MOUND CITY SECURES THE DEMMIES' CONVENTION

Followers of the Donkey Will Assemble in St. Louis on July 6th Next, for Nominating Purposes.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The honor of housing the National Democratic convention next July was lost to Chicago because of a shortage of seven votes in the final count.

St. Louis captured the prize by a vote of 23 to 21. The national committee was kindly disposed toward Chicago, but the impression appeared to prevail that there were "some dinky old strings in the offer" as made, and when the committeemen voted Chicago lost the battle she had waged so long and earnestly.

Business-Like Offer.
There were no strings, dinky or otherwise, on the offer of St. Louis, and Mr. Knapp, in presenting her case, did so in the most business-like fashion. His figures showed the size and number of her hotels, the distance of St. Louis from the various centers of population, the character of her climate according to the weather bureau representatives, together with a few modestly put illustrations of St. Louis hospitality and the rates of railroad fare.

The demand of John P. Hopkins for 2,000 tickets to be given to some undersigned who had thoughtlessly forgotten to sign their names did not please the committee, nor did the other demand that the money subscribed by Chicago should be spent under the eye of an auditing committee and the unexpended balance, if there was any, should be given back to the "undersigned," who had carelessly omitted to let any one know how they wrote their names.

Change Comes Too Late.
Afterward when Judge Goodrich offered to withdraw the dinky strings and make a "straight offer" of 5,000 votes had been alienated, and the balance of power rested in the hands of New York and Maryland.

From the first it had been plain that New York did not want the convention, though McCarren did make a witty speech about New York, the summer city by the sea, where you had to wear a light overcoat in June and in July were cooled off by the splash of the waves of the "City by the Sea" shore. It was a nice pleasant talk, but altogether too indifferent in sense and sound to compete against the determined talks of the other convention advocates.

Object to Union Labor.

New York's reason for such a slighting presentation of its case and its subsequent move to St. Louis was made apparent when Norman E. Mack in the lobby told his friends that he did not want to see Chicago get it, for there were so many union labor men in Chicago they would likely influence the Democratic convention in favor of a candidate that the labor unions wanted. Also, as an eastern man might be the candidate, the west or south ought to have the convention. As he did not want the convention too much influenced by union labor he supposed it had better go to St. Louis.

Gorman of Maryland and Norman E. Mack were quoted in the lobbies as dreadfully afraid of the influence of the workmen in case the convention met in Chicago, and Guffey of Pennsylvania was likewise apprehensive.

Mary Elizabeth Cheney is a beautiful singer.

UNAVOIDABLE.

TALK IS FOR HARMONY

BAENSCH'S STATEMENT SENT BROADCAST

The State Campaign Committee Chosen by Judge Baensch To Promote His Candidacy for Governor of Wisconsin, Talks.

To the Republicans of Wisconsin:
The undersigned, with all members of the republican party of Wisconsin, have drifted from differences on non-essentials into warring party camps.

We believe the time has come when the fight within the party should cease. We believe that this will be found to be the judgment of the party, and that it only remains to choose a way in which it may be given expression. Any its command issued. At the request of Judge Emil Baensch we have undertaken to organize the republicans of the state for party peace. Actuated by this motive, Judge Baensch has requested in the urgent request that he become a candidate for the nomination for governor. We will actively and vigorously promote his candidacy, believing it to be in the best interests of the party, but he considers his candidacy as only a means to an end—party peace—holding the interests of the party paramount to the personal ambition of any man, and should the convention find that some other name would more surely secure harmony, that man will have his hearty support.

Hon. S. A. Cook, actuated, as we believe, by the same high purpose has also announced himself as a candidate. While using all honorable means to secure the nomination of Judge Baensch, we can but congratulate the party upon the assurance that the nomination of any true republican, who may be a candidate in this spirit, will command the support of a united party.

The candidacy, however, of any man whose nomination would mean a continuation of the present factional division of the party should be discouraged, and the advice of those whose political or material interests would be endangered by the return of peace, should be received with great caution.

Because of local conditions in various states and the disposition of the democratic party to unite its factions with all interests opposed to the administration of Theodore Roosevelt it can be truly stated that the result of the coming presidential election is not one of certainty, and it would be a political crime should be a united democracy in its efforts to defeat his reelection he confronted with a divided, factional, republican party in Wisconsin. The vote of Wisconsin once determined the result of a presidential election.

Let us have a new alignment that will stamp out factionalism. There are no irreconcilable differences. Our greatest concern today should be the unification of the party. To a united party can safely be entrusted the settlement of all issues.

In the efforts we purpose making for Roosevelt, Baensch, and party peace, we ask the co-operation of all who are in sympathy with us, without regard to past factional affiliations. We invite an expression of your views as well as suggestions from you as to organization of the republicans of the state, to accomplish which requires both time and money. Any contribution you may be pleased to make should be sent to Hon. O. W. Johnson, (treasurer, Racine). All other communications should be addressed to P. L. Spooner, 29 Wm. Block, Madison Wis.

CHARLES DENBY KIES SUDDENLY

Former Minister to China Passes Away in Jamestown Hotel.

(Special by Scripps-McLae.)
Jamestown, N. Y., Jan. 13.—Charles Denby formerly United States minister to China died suddenly this morning at the Hotel Sherman. He delivered an address here last night.

It is reported that new creditors of H. Zeck of Crivitz have entered claims against estate, which is still in the hands of the receiver. Mr. Elmore, the receiver, had expected to turn the estate over to the Kersteins of Chilton soon, but it may now mean some time and much litigation before matters will be settled.

ALL TROUBLE IS NOT OVER

Colombians Still Have Their Troops Near the Border, Waiting for Developments.

MARINES SENT TO SCOUT COUNTRY

An Expedition Goes from Colon in Search of Information Regarding Movements of the Troops.

(Special by Scripps-McLae.)

London, Jan. 13.—The news from Fokio and St. Petersburg is less warlike, although neither Russia nor Japan is slackening its warlike preparations.

From Tokio come encouraging signs of a more peaceful attitude. Japan, it is intimated, has not only not sent an ultimatum to Russia but is willing to reopen negotiations.

Along this line the Times correspondent at Tokio ascribes Japan's reported decision to reply to Russia to the fact that the last Russian note, although unsatisfactory in substance, was couched in a conciliatory tone, thereby inviting a continuance of negotiations. He adds that nothing of the nature of an ultimatum has yet been submitted.

Prepare for War.
Bennet Burleigh, in his dispatches to the Daily Telegraph from Tokio, says:

"The talk in the street is of peace, but preparations for war continue to be made vigorously and to-morrow may bring other news."

"The conferences of the statesmen are proceeding in Tokio. Baron Komura, the foreign minister, saw Marquis Ito this morning and Baron Yamamoto, minister of marine, representing the premier, Count Katsura, who is indisposed at the palace, and reported the result of Monday's deliberations."

"The council of the senior statesmen, all members of the council except Count Katsura, together with the chiefs of staff of the navy and army, and also the assistant chiefs and five senior statesmen, held a conference with the emperor."

May Reopen Negotiations.
"It is understood that Japan will attempt new negotiations, though aware that Russia declines to discuss Manchuria and is seeking to minimize the Korean issue, and that the talk will evolve nothing."

"Conferences are proceeding apiece. A Russian messenger is on the way to Tokio from Admiral Alexieff, and to-morrow Baron Komura will call upon Baron Von Rosen, the Russian minister."

"A Peking telegram says Col. Ogorodnicoff, successor on the Russian Gen. Wozacek, has told the viceroy that Russia's second reply rejects the Japanese demands, but that Russia is anxious for peace and has offered a way thereto."

Notwithstanding these more peaceful indications, there is plenty of evidence that both powers are continuing their warlike preparations with unabated vigor.

Troops Are Concentrating.
From Port Arthur comes the news that the Seventh Russian brigade is concentrating along the Yalu river in Corea.

From Chefoo a report is cabled that stores for the use of troops on the Yalu river have been ordered to be sent from Lian Yang, from which point one regiment is already preparing to proceed to the Yalu. Gen. Maibing, chief of staff, while admitting that every preparation is being made, disclaims any belief that there will be a war.

The Russian fleet at Port Arthur has stripped for action.

Two divisions of Russian troops are reported to be moving to Manchuria by the Trans-Siberian railway.

Russian troops occupied Sin-Min-Tun, the Chinese railway terminus, 100 miles northwest of New Chwang.

A dispatch from Paris asserts that Russia is prepared to transport 250,000 troops to the far east within forty days, in addition to the 250,000 already there.

Japan Has 600,000 Men.
Baron Kurino, the Japanese minister at St. Petersburg, asserted that Japan is ready to send 600,000 troops into the field.

It is estimated that Japan is already entrenched on the south slope of Gusan, 115 miles northeast of Seoul.

The Japanese legation has received official confirmation of the Peking dispatch, which stated that the Chinese minister at Tokio had telegraphed to Prince Ching that the Japanese foreign office had requested him to inform his government that the second Russian reply was unfavorable and could not be accepted by Japan, who would, unless Russia recedes promptly, resort to arms, and that Japan expected China to maintain strict neutrality, and, in case of war, to preserve order throughout the empire and guard foreign residents in the interior.

WAS NO PROTECTION FROM FIRE, IT IS SAID

Inquest Over the Iroquois Theatre Victims Continues To Show Gross Carelessness of Owners of Building.

(Special by Scripps-McLae.)

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Summons for the mayor, fire marshal, aldermen and attaches of the building department were discussed this morning before the inquiry was resumed. The mayor announced at noon he was ready to appear when the coroner asks for him. The testimony this morning was of stage hands, none of whom had ever received any fire instructions. John McCloskey, the stage carpenter, who turned in the alarm from outside, said that in his twenty years' experience as a stage carpenter less fire appliances were to be found in the Iroquois than in any house he had ever worked in. McCloskey thought the bellying of the curtain was caused by a draft from the rear door which caused it to stick. He said that there were no strip lights on the side of the stage. There were no exit signs over the doors. Other stage hands testified on the same lines.

MINES AND MEADOWS OF WISCONSIN EXPLORED BY THE TWILIGHT CLUB

Her Pearls, Dairy Products, Manufactures, Tobacco, Fisheries, Lumber, and Breweries

Discussed at Length—Fred Jeffris Told of the Disappearing Forest—

Stanley B. Smith's Witty Address.

Report—Dashing, scintillating, replete—punctuated by the Twilight club's series of dissertations on Wisconsin's Resources last evening. Capt. Piny Norcross—to use a rather inelegant metaphor—gave his speakers the loose rope and few failed to jerk it more than taut. The reign of self-congratulation, statistics, and patriotic fervor, commenced shortly after the serving of a bounteous supper. "Immigration" was announced as the subject for the next meeting and Senator Whitehead was chosen as the leader.

This Remarkable State—
"We are here tonight to hear something of the resources of Wisconsin," said Capt. Norcross in opening the session. "Four weeks ago I thought the subject could easily be taken care of. But you see we have ten speakers limited to ten minutes each, and even with these subjects assigned we are only covering a portion of the field. Of course we all know that Wisconsin was admitted to the union in 1848, was the seventeenth to be admitted, and is now fifty-six years old. Between the years 1850 and 1900 there was an increase in the population amounting to 123 per cent. As I look down the list of 160 members of this Twilight club which has lasted eight years and now has a membership larger than ever before, I observe that over one-half are natives of Wisconsin. Fifty-five or sixty years ago from far away in the foreign country, from Germany, and from New England came the young men pioneers, who were looking forward to a better day. The blood and sweat of these is one of our greatest resources." George Sutherland was then called upon to discuss "Mines and Mining." No answer.

Fills Another Void—
"When I said that I had a revolver in my pocket for the man who should talk more than ten minutes, I was only figuratively speaking," said Capt. Norcross. "Mr. Sutherland is not here—is there anyone to represent him?"

"Mr. Chairman: As Mr. Jeffris is a partner of Mr. Sutherland in many mining ventures, I suggest that he be called upon to speak on this subject," said Judge Earle.

"Mr. Jeffris: 'Mr. Chairman: I cannot handle the subject—the managing part of these mining ventures is with Sutherland—I am only putting in the money.'"

Volce: "Is there any money in it?" "That remains to be well, there certainly is money in it—I've put it in. The pertinent question is: Is there any coming out?" Then Mr. Jeffris, as on other occasions, arose and filled the place of the absentee.

Iron, Zinc and Lead—
In general he knew that Wisconsin's iron mines in the northern part of the state gave it a position among the foremost producers in the country. At Baraboo, also, a good grade of iron had been discovered and rails were being laid to the mine. Over in the southwestern part of the state mining has been conducted for sixty years. "We've got no stock to sell," he hastened to add, parenthetically. I do believe that southwestern Wisconsin today possesses one of the greatest lead and zinc fields in the world. The fields differ from those of Missouri where these metals are found in pockets. The history of the locality is an interesting one, on the other hand, shows that the ore runs in veins, and once a vein is discovered, it may be followed long distances. The Enterprise mine at Platteville has sunk a shaft 130 feet and struck the vein. While it handles ore in a crude manner with primitive equipment, yet it has paid 25 per cent in dividends per month. This field is practically untouched. The iron fields in the north are enormous—they take the ore out with steam shovels. I am sorry Sutherland is not here. He is the practical miner. He drives the drill—I pay for it.

Army-Worm and Dairying—
O. A. Oestreich thought that he had been victimized with the subject of "Dairy Products" owing to the fact that word had been passed in the hustings that he and H. J. Cunningham each owned a disputed, undivided half-interest in a cow. The dairy industry dates back to the beginning of the state. In 1857 there were one million dollars invested in dairy property of a primitive sort. The real beginning, however, was in 1859 when Hiram Smith built the first cheese factory in a Sheboygan county. He made money and some of it went to fund American cheese-making divides itself into two parts—foreign and American proper.

Advent of the Swiss—
The industry of Swiss cheese-making began in Green county. During the years 1845-7 there was a great commercial depression in Switzerland and the canton Glarus raised a fund to send some of its people to America. One hundred and eighty came to Wisconsin and settled in the Sugar river valley in Green county. At first they merely made cheese for their own use and filled the soil for a livelihood. Presently, however, the cheese-making and the army-worm and the discovery of their crops and they discovered that grain-raising was no longer profitable. In 1870 one of these started a cheese factory and the present prosperity of Green county dates from that time.

Fifty Million Dollars—
The development during the past thirty years has been immense. There are now a million and a half of dairy cows yielding a gross annual product of $50 per cow, and the gross dairy product is over $50,000,000. We have in the neighborhood of 3,000 cheese factories and creameries, about equally divided. Wisconsin is second only to New York state. We have the greatest dairy school in the world. It annually trains 150 boys in professional dairying and 250 for our beloved state will prosper in the future as in the past. "What gives point to this matter is that Wisconsin has only been a manufacturing state twenty-five years," said Capt. Norcross.

Wisconsin Tobacco—
Norman Carls was to have discussed "Tobacco" but was unable to be present. His father, L. B. Carls, consented to take his place. He said that the first tobacco was grown in Wisconsin in 1800 from some seed brought from Connecticut by Mr. Conroy. In 1850 from 75,000 to 80,000 cases were being produced each year. About that time Wisconsin tobacco became very popular with a certain class of manufacturers. Wisconsin tobacco is a blunder-tobacco and this state today raises more than any other cigar-tobacco growing state in the union. Thirty per cent of our tobacco makes good binders.

Not a Good Wrapper—
Our leaf does not make a good wrapper. It loses its lustre, color, and dries. But is largely used for binders in the straight Havana cigars because, being tasteless, it mixes well and reduces the high flavors. No doubt 150,000,000 cases were raised well and reduces the high flavors, bring the grower about four million dollars and a half million will be expended in labor in preparing the leaf for market.

Lower Grades Exported—
Perhaps it would be interesting to know that there is more money invested in tobacco in Janesville than in anything else. In the county the investment is second in importance, the machine shops alone representing more invested capital. The cost of growing is about $40 an acre. The average yield is about 1,200 pounds to the acre and at from six to eight cents it pays the farmer well. The lower grades were formerly exported on a large scale but of late years Brazil has been crowding the Wisconsin grower out. The Brazil export is a little better than our lowest grade.

Col. Kimberley Sings—
At this juncture the leader said he would devote from the usual order of things and call upon Col. Kimberley to sing a song entitled "Wisconsin." The club was well pleased with the selection and rendition. The words are by Revenue Collector James Monahan of Darlington and the music by his daughter. Following is a portion of the song: "The green hills I see, dear Wisconsin, the far distant lands I may roam, for in visions of beauty that memory brings me, I see the spot that was my childhood home."

Over Half On Farms—
Fifty-three per cent of our population are farmers and there are 170,000 farms. Each one is maintaining from six to seven people. I was interested to note the estimated value of farm land in the state. In 1890 it was placed at $390,000,000, while the manufacturing interests only amounted to $330,000,000. Each farm has an average value of $4781.

Return On Investments—
I will show you that the farmers of the state today are realizing more on invested capital than the manufacturers. The profits to the farmers in 1890 after the labor had been paid and the soil restored to its original condition by fertilizers, on nearly a billion dollars investment amounted to $146,000,000 or 18 per cent. The manufacturers on an investment of about 350 million received a profit of 52 million dollars, or fifteen per cent. The average farm consists of 117 acres and the average profit is $861.

Eight Million Hens—
Capt. Norcross suggested that I take up the subject of ways and means whereby each acre may be compelled to yield more. Now in this section, the chicken industry is one of no mean proportions. There are in Wisconsin 8,000,000 hens and they yield 46 million dozen of eggs valued at $7,000,000 a year. It is interesting to know that Wisconsin ranks second in its yield of potatoes and produces 24 million bushels. These figures do not mean a great deal. It is not so important that we lead in rice, for rice on the average nets the grower only $7.10 an acre. The great question is: Shall we be able to feed and clothe the millions who are to come? I think we may rely on Wisconsin so far as agriculture is concerned.

Manufactures—
What I have to say on "Manufactures" must necessarily be statistical, said F. A. Spoon. In 1900 Wisconsin ranked ninth in manufactures, as compared with other states. In 1870 our rank was 13. Today we have taken such strides that our standing is 7. Our manufactured products include 157 different kinds made at 18,500 establishments. The capital invested in manufacturing is $330,000,000. The wages paid to labor may interest us.

Wages to Laborers—
A total of 142,076 laborers are employed and $58,400,000 is annually paid in wages. 120,131 men over sixteen years of age receive on an average $448 each year. 16,256 women receive $248; and 5,691 children, $157 a year.

Products of Forest—
Walter Helms' discussion of Sugar Beets is given in another column. Fred Jeffris discussed "Lumber Products." Wisconsin has been the second state in the world in the production of white pine. Until recent years statistics have not been kept carefully, but it is safe to assume that the average output has been three or four billions of feet a year. Statistics show a falling off of from five to ten per cent each year during the past decade but this estimate is not reliable as many logs cut here are rafted across the lakes and the product of the small and portable mills are lost track of. The supply of white pine has materially diminished and the larger portion now comes from Minnesota and Canada. The big mill-men of Wisconsin have gone south and west.

Reforestation Impracticable—
I have to talk to you of a decreasing industry, and that brings up the subject of reforestation. The government has been unsuccessful in its efforts to reforest the land. The land is being used for agriculture and the forest is being destroyed. The government has been unsuccessful in its efforts to reforest the land. The land is being used for agriculture and the forest is being destroyed. The government has been unsuccessful in its efforts to reforest the land. The land is being used for agriculture and the forest is being destroyed.

Our Fisheries—
Ira F. Wortendyke discussed Wisconsin's Fisheries. There are four hatcheries in the state and the report for 1902 shows that the output of fry was as follows: Madison, 25 million; Oshkosh, 72; Bayfield, 35; and Menomonie, 17. Total, 126 millions. Brook and rainbow trout, bass and pike constitute the principal output, though the Oshkosh hatchery produces 18 million whitefish and the Bayfield hatchery 19 million. The inland fisheries are of immense importance to the state because they bring thousands of visitors, thus supporting hotels, guides, provision stores, etc., and bringing hundreds of thousands of dollars to the state. About 1,100 men earn their livelihood from fishing on Lake Michigan and 210 from Lake Superior.

Statistics Incomplete—
About 27,500,000 pounds of fish are marketed each year, the value being $589,000. The statistics are incomplete. Clamming has been a profitable industry on the Mississippi and tributaries. Prairie du Chien in 1899 manufactured 73,000 gross of blank buttons valued at $9,000. Our local factory manufactures about 250 gross a day, marketed at 35 cents a gross, or $36,000 for the year's output. The refuse shells are ground for Prof. Bull's hens. The value of the fishery as a means of recreation was shown by estimated investments of $7,700,000 in summer resort property and a million and a half dollars expended annually by summer visitors. "There are 2,000 lakes in Wisconsin," remarked Capt. Norcross.

MISS THAYER IS MENTIONED

The Manual Training Department of Marquette School, is Commended On.

The following interesting account of the Marquette Michigan work in manual training and Domestic science was published recently in a Marquette paper. It is particularly interesting to Janesville owing to the fact that both Mr. Brace and Miss Thayer the two teachers mentioned both left the Janesville high school at the end of the last school year to establish these departments in the Marquette schools.

With all the preliminaries out of the way and actual work in progress, manual training is at last thoroughly introduced in the public schools of Marquette and is now part of the education of upwards of 500 young people in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades and the high school. Instruction is given the high school classes and those of the seventh and eighth grades at the manual training building. The work in the fifth and sixth grades is carried on under the direct supervision of the teachers. With periodical visits from the director, George M. Brace. The teachers themselves meet at the manual training building for a weekly lesson on the work assigned to their children, and for general instructions.

Mr. Brace expresses himself as well pleased with the manner in which the teachers and the young people have taken hold of the manual training instruction. They manifest an interest and facility in using their hands that seem to justify a belief in the unqualified success of the new department in this city. At the manual training building all has moved with a particular smoothness. The members of the various classes seem to have high ideals of excellence, and already beginning to work effectively. Practically no discipline is required.

Thursday afternoon there was an exhibition of manual training work from the grades and high school for the enlightenment of members of the school board. It comprised simple and more elaborate basketry, wood carving in simple designs, samples of the elementary lessons given the grade pupils, and examples of the more elaborate work done in the shop by the high school boys, whose last lesson in carpentry was the making of knife and fork trays. These trays were well and symmetrically put together. The girls' progress was shown particularly in the practical object lesson of the dinner served the board members, reference to which was made in yesterday's issue of The Mining Journal.

The shop work is carried on in the first floor of the building, where there is a machine room and a room for the work benches. Here Mr. Brace is the director. Above stairs, in the kitchen and in the sewing, Miss Thayer, who has charge of the domestic art work, has her quarters. The appointments of the building are excellent, much of the furnishing and fitting having been done on the premises. The furniture for the dining room, cupboards, racks, and other things were built by carpenters working under Mr. Brace's direction. The work benches were put together, with the exception of the gluing, by the boys, and are built in accordance with patents controlled by Mr. Brace. Their height is adjustable to the stature of different pupils, and they have in arrangement for keeping the tools under key convenient when wanted for actual work.

In the fifth and sixth grades, in which the manual training is introduced directly into various rooms, the instruction is confined to whitening, or sloyd work, and the simpler forms of basketry. In these two grades the boys and girls do the same work, under the direction of the teachers, who, as indicated above, themselves have weekly lessons. The pupils have three weekly periods of thirty minutes each, and Mr. Brace makes a point of visiting each room at least once a week. In sloyd work only the use of the jack-knife is permitted. Simple things are cut out of soft pine wood, and there is much rivalry between the boys and girls to see which can do the most expert work with the jack-knife. There is comparatively little distinction between the work of the fifth and sixth grades, although the latter is somewhat more difficult.

In the instruction arranged for the seventh and eighth grades the boys and girls are first led along different paths. The former are introduced to simpler bench work with the use of more tools than the solitary jack-knife, to which fifth and sixth graders are confined. The girls go upstairs, and are turned over to Miss Thayer, first to receive advanced lessons in basketry and hand work. At this time the girls have about finished the basketry instruction and are to receive lessons in simple sewing and simple cooking, while the difficulty of the boys' tasks at the bench is to be gradually increased. There are three classes for manual training in each of the seventh and eighth grades, each class having two thirty-five minute periods a week at the manual training school.

What High School Pupils Do.
The high school pupils in the school have instruction in bench work, cooking, basketry, hand work and sewing. The boys confine their attention to the shops and draughting room. To date this year they have been mainly busy with actual work about the manual training building, particularly the construction of their benches, which took them a number of weeks. These are solidly built and sufficiently complicated to require much time in setting up, especially as the boys were all "green" when introduced to the task, and thus under the necessity of proceeding in a careful manner. The knife and fork trays were their first lesson, and they have now just made a start with Venetian iron work. Up stairs the girls have been receiving careful instruction in cooking. All their work has a scientific basis, yet nothing is taught theoretically. Demonstration is the keynote of the system and the various principles brought out have to be applied and experimented with in the actual preparation of food. Sewing has been proceeding along with cooking, and there has also been head and basketry work. More advanced instruction will be taken up later in the year. Pyrography is one of the things yet to be introduced.

The school is managed with a careful system. A record of all time spent by pupils on different lessons is kept, and the teachers are marked down according to the amount of work done. Work can only be done except in case of special permission or punishment, during the regular class periods, and no work is allowed to be taken home.

Next year the department will be further expanded, it is planned by the addition of other wood working machinery, lathes, etc.

John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers' Union, says on the immigration question: "Immigration should be restricted much more than now. No matter how decent and self-respecting and hard-working the aliens who are flooding this country may be, they are invading the land of Americans, and whether they know it or not, are helping to take the bread out of their mouths. America for Americans should be the motto of every citizen, whether he be a workman or a capitalist. There are already too many aliens in this country. There is not enough work for the many millions who are pressing into our cities and towns to compete with the skilled American in his various trades and occupations. While the majority of the immigrants are not skilled workmen, they rapidly become so and their competition is not of a stimulating order."

HAIR TELLS CHARACTER.

Color of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde, or light hair denotes affection and dark hair constancy. A person without hair is not devoid of character; far from it. The disposition of the average bald-headed man is to show such solicitude for the welfare of others, that he neglects himself. A germ causes baldness. Prof. Sabouraud, of Paris, France, inoculated a rabbit with Dandruff germ, causing it to become totally bald in five weeks' time. To rid the scalp of these dangerous germs it is necessary to apply Sewell's Hairdressing.

Corrosion by Sea Water.

The corrosion of metals by sea water has been investigated by a German engineer named Diegel. Alloys of copper and nickel are not very readily corroded and are rendered more immune by adjacent masses of copper alloys, iron or copper, these protectors being then more rapidly corroded. Copper-zinc alloys are corroded either by a uniform solution of the alloy from the surface or when the zinc exceeds 24 per cent by leaching out of the latter, but by the addition of 15 per cent nickel this action is prevented.

"WE WILL BUY IT BACK"

Peoples Drug Company's Remarkable Way of Selling Mi-na, the Flesh Forming Food.

Just ask the Peoples Drug company what they think of Mi-na. It will not take you long to ask them, but it will take them some time to tell you all the good things they know of this remarkable flesh forming food.

It is natural for people to doubt, but when the Peoples Drug company frankly offer to buy back any empty boxes when Mi-na fails to restore health and increase the weight, and return the full amount of money paid, it silences the doubters and they cannot help but feel that Mi-na is an unusual and remarkable preparation. Used for a little while, this flesh forming food will show that it actually furnishes real nourishment, regulates digestion and increases weight.

Watch yourself and then begin its use and the scales will soon show the good Mi-na is doing. It gives strength and tone to the digestive organs, makes rich, red blood and puts the whole system in proper physical condition. If it did not do what is claimed for it, The Peoples Drug company could not afford to sell it the way they do, agreeing to refund the cost, 50c, in case it does not give complete satisfaction.

Every one who is thin, weak and out of health, should begin the use of Mi-na on these terms, for it costs absolutely nothing unless it makes you well.

Forest fires have destroyed more timber than was ever cut. The lumber business is now turning to a different course. Small mills are manufacturing staves and headings. Pulp mills are taking small hemlock which they never used before. The big mills belong to the past, though the lumber industry will continue to be quite a factor in our commercial life for the next forty years.

Wisconsin's pearls. No statistics, no record of Wisconsin pearls, has been kept, said E. C. Field. Had such a record been kept during the past 12 years and if it were possible to trace the pearls to their present owners, this industry would give to Wisconsin greater fame than her tobacco and her breweries. I do not wish to presume on your credulity, yet the jewelry trade journals are authority for the statement that the finest pearls the world has known have come from Wisconsin. The first were found in the Sugar river near Albany, in Green county. They were blue, bronze, and purple colored and the first finders had serious doubts as to their possessing any value. Some sent to New York where they were returned with the statement that they were worthless. When the London and Paris experts saw them they acted quickly, sending agents disguised as farm hands, who at first purchased for a song. Then their eagerness to buy forced up the prices.

Pearls in the Rock. Two years ago a pearl sold by its finder for $1,258 was disposed of in New York for $10,000. It would be interesting to know what its final owner paid for it. The fisheries are now about exhausted. I weighed a 64-grain pearl last year that afterwards sold for $2,000. A very valuable one was found in the Rock river within the city limits a few years ago. Another found in Bass Creek near Afton by a little girl not long ago sold for $225.

Shed at Breweries. Capt. Norcross said that he had experienced great difficulty in finding anyone who would take the subject "The Breweries." While he knew that all had reached an age of maturity and drank beer, he could find not one who would say anything about it. Last of all he struck the president of the First National bank and found a never-failing friend who would help him out of his dilemma. Stanley H. Smith said that two or three weeks ago Norcross had come to him and acquainted him with his trouble and he had agreed to help out. It did not seem difficult. One needed only to go to the blue-book. He said that he had already sent for and received an almanac but that it didn't say anything about beer.

The Blue Book Wonderful. In this blue-book anything statistical or political may be found illustrated with the portraits of our statesmen who make the laws and the great jurists who nullify and emasculate them. It bears the same relation to our civilization as did the Koran. You remember that when Alexandria was taken the Caliph Omar was asked what was to be done with the Alexandrian library. He replied that if the contents of the volumes agreed with the Koran they were superfluous; if they didn't they were heretical. In either case they should be destroyed. Likewise in the early days of this country, with the witches in Boston. An old woman would be arrested and given hydropathic treatment—that is she would be thrown into a mill-pond, if she were innocent she sank and drowned; if guilty she floated, and was therefore burned at the stake. So with the blue-book. It is authoritative, though no author's name appears on the fly-leaf.

Gambinus the Inventor. Naturally, when I talk of beer and brewing, my first thought is of the inventor of that delectable art—the of the portly form and Kris Kringle face whom we see astride the kegs in the beer-signs. His name is Gambinus and the Encyclopedia Britannica has nothing to say of him. The late Prof. Flisko does so neglect him and from one of his books I learned that the inventor of brewing was originally a fiddler; that he was killed by a girl and went to the forest to hang himself from a tall tree. There he met an emissary of Beelzebub and agreed to blind himself to Satan in return for 30 years of happiness and great wealth. With the aid of the fiend he invented chiming bells and lager beer. The ruler of the Holy Roman empire, after consuming a gallon

Forty Years Ago...

Anti Freezing Pump.—A reference to another column will inform those in want where they secure a pump that will not freeze. The proprietors are in town for a few days.

The Young Peoples Literary union meets tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Personal.—General G. H. Ruger, of our volunteer army, has been home several days on furlough. Mr. Ruger is well known to the citizens of Janesville, having resided here most of his life, and from the excellent record he has made as a military officer as well as a citizen, they have great reason to be proud of his product, made him duke of Flanders. Finally the 30 years were up and the emissary came to take away Gambinus. But the emissary got drunk on the beer and the applicable time having passed was unable to claim his prisoner. So Gambinus continued to live for 102 years.

A Look in the Book. Forty-six million barrels of beer, a half barrel for each man, woman, and child—are consumed in this country each year. A total of 3,800,000 barrels are manufactured in Wisconsin which ranks fourth in the quantity of its output. About 12,000 barrels is the estimated output of the Janesville breweries. If they sell for $6 or $7 a barrel the total revenue is considerable.

Don't forget, please. Mrs. Austin's Pancake flour best of all. At grocers.

Milk Always Fresh. An invention which is described as about to revolutionize the milk trade is being worked in France. The milk is not "condensed" in the ordinary sense, but the water is extracted from it by a patent process. The powder that remains contains all the essential elements, and is converted back to milk by the simple addition of seven parts of water to one of the milk extract. It is claimed that it is always possible to have fresh milk by this process, which is the invention of Dr. Just, of Boston, and a German engineer.

All Energy From the Sun. All the energy of life is derived ultimately from the sun. A little of this comes indirectly through lightning, which, in passing through the air, forms ammonia and oxides of nitrogen. These, being carried by rain into the ground, are the constant source of nitrogen for vegetable, and, indirectly, for animal life. A much larger quantity of energy is well known to be taken direct from the sunshine by plants and used in their anabolic processes. This energy is appropriated by animals in their food, and whether in the vegetable or in the animals, it assists in many alternations of the system before it is completely dispersed.

Can You Be Proud of This? Why the spirit of mortal has no right to be proud has been answered by a French chemist, who tells us that the human body only represents the equivalent of elements contained in the yolks and whites of 1,200 ordinary sized eggs of the common hen. The body will furnish enough iron to make 7 large nails, fat for 12 candles, carbon for 65 gross of pencils, phosphorus to tip 820,000 matches, about 20 teaspoonfuls of salt, 59 turps of sugar, and 42 quarts of water. Also enough gas to float a balloon.

Courage and Clothes. If women were not brave they would never face the dangers with which they are constantly threatened by doctors and others. There have been those who would have frightened them out of their corsets; others have predicted blindness from the use of spotted veils; pneumonia, by this time, would have decimated the female population if all the prophecies concerning the blouse had been fulfilled. Still, woman fearlessly follows fashion.—World.

The Seventh Wisconsin on Their Way to Madison.—The gallant Seventh Wisconsin—a part of the Old Iron Brigade which has won such imperishable honor on the battle field—passed through here this morning on the six o'clock train enroute to Madison. They number about 540 men. A furlough of thirty days has been granted them to enjoy the endearments of home and to fill up their thinned ranks. They comforted themselves in the most gentlemanly manner while on the cars, winning the admiration of all who saw them. They are worthy and should receive the highest honors a grateful people can pay.

Aldebaran, the Gypsy Star. Like a fire in the field at night I saw the Red Star shine, The Red Star, the gypsy star, And I claimed its light for mine; The watcher by the flame, The guide o'er many a path, That beckoning waves his rosy torch For wild and wandering men.

Like a disk of the ruddy gold I saw the Red Star gleam, The Red Star, the gypsy star, That roves in the roads of dream; Across the empty years, He flung his spendthrift store, As a romany plays with handruffs bright, In the shade of the low tent door.

I saw the Red Star glow, The Red Star, the gypsy star, Whose trail the vagabonds know; Beneath the house of earth, They went with joy in their homeless hearts Who have seen the Red Star rise.—St. James's Gazette.

UNLUCKY FUR-BEARING ANIMALS

Their Extermination Certain as Result of Hunters' Greed. The fur-bearing animals are more persistently hunted than any other, since many people depend for a living on their capture. When it is shown that in one year there are brought to the market the fur of 150,000 pine-marts, 400,000 stone-marts, 600,000 pole-cats, 400,000 ermines, 160,000 minx, 55,000 otters, and from America alone 150,000 beavers and 100,000 chinchillas, it will be seen that their extermination is a question of a short time. The sea-otter is now to be found only in the Northern Pacific, on the northern coast of California, and thence along the coast of America and of Asia. To-day fewer than 2,000 sea-otter furs are sent to the market annually.

Her Point of View. The aged soldier had lived with his wife for many years in a three-room cottage on the edge of the town. When he died the kindly neighbors helped with the last sad offices, and the old man was laid out on the bed, with two candles burning at the head. The bereaved widow was called for at a neighboring house. Next morning she went to her home, and, observing that the rats had eaten most of the candles, exclaimed: "Well, there's one thing about it. If I ever get out of this mess, I'll keep a cat!"

Value of Education. An uneducated child has one chance in 150,000 of attaining distinction as a factor in the progress of the age. A common school education increases his chance nearly four times. A high school education increases the chance of the common school child twenty-three times, giving him eighty-seven times the chance of the uneducated. A college education increases the chance of the high school boy nine times, giving him 219 times the chance of the common school boy and more than 800 times the chance of the untrained.

"OH, HOW MY HEAD ACHED!"

"Day After Day I Was Nearly Frantic—and Now I Am Cured."

"Oh, how my head ached for days and days and nights and nights until I thought I would lose my mind. Always from the same cause—stomach trouble."

"I took medicine after medicine, but they all made me sicker soon as they reached my mouth. I was so thin that my clothes didn't fit me, and I tell you I was thoroughly alarmed."

"Then I read of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, and asked father to get me a box. I did not mind taking them—just a little tablet, and so easy to swallow. I have taken two boxes, and now I haven't had a headache for five weeks. I have gained several pounds of flesh, and I think I will soon weigh more than I ever did."

This is the experience of thousands of women, suffering from improper eating, bringing about stomach troubles, and headaches and general nervous breakdown follow.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets bring sure, pleasant relief to suffering womanhood. Here is another letter, this one from Mrs. George B. Stone, 80 Jacques Ave., Worcester, Mass., which speaks eloquently of this wonderful remedy:

I have been troubled since childhood with stomach trouble. I have never known what it was to feel comfortable. I have tried many patent medicines, almost everything that I heard of, and none of them seemed to help me. I was much distressed with belching, gas, flatulence, and I had headaches that would make me almost crazy. I was so thin that I was almost emaciated. Then I heard of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets and now I am well and strong. My headaches have vanished and I can eat whatever I choose without fear."

Our proposition is not merely to sell you dyspepsia tablets, but to sell you a cure for your dyspepsia and indigestion. If Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets do not effect this cure, we give you back your money. That shows how much confidence we have in this new remedy. Price 25 cents per large package. Sold only at our store or by mail.

Women's Headaches

421-2 Congress Street, PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

Consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pain would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain.

Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Brown
Treasurer, Portland Economic League.

Headaches are the danger signals of coming disease. Both men and women suffer headaches, but periodical headache falls only to the lot of women and is the unerring sign of irregular menstruation and bearing down pains. Completely prostrated by nine months of suppressed menses, blinded by headaches and racked with pain Mrs. Brown was made a strong and healthy woman again. Remember with Wine of Cardui no case is hopeless because this great remedy cures permanently ninety-nine out of every twenty cases and never fails to benefit a case of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have failed, try Wine of Cardui, and try it now. Remember that headaches mean female weakness. Secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui today. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

THE PACIFIC THEATRE.

The statement attributed to General McArthur that the Pacific will be the theatre of future commercial and military struggles between nations, unquestionably state a fact of immense interest and importance. No longer the Mediterranean and the Atlantic are to be the scenes of the greatest contests of commerce and of war between the nations. The trend of events is towards the Pacific. The future history of the world will be written there in large characters.

From this point of view, the event of the year now closing which is the most far-reaching significance, is the revolution in Panama and the quick recognition of the new republic by the United States as a preliminary to the building of the isthmian canal. It is manifest that this country is to take a leading part in all that shall hereafter take place on the broad theatre of the Pacific. The United States is the only great country of the world whose main territory stretches for hundreds of miles along both the Atlantic and the Pacific. Our concerns in the Pacific are now indeed of prime importance. The development of our commerce must be largely in that direction. The natural field of our enterprise must be in a conquest of the oriental markets and in the development of South America. For both the control of the Panama canal is essential. We are undoubtedly well constituted for the purpose of acquiring a great influence and obtaining an immense trade in the Pacific.

With our miles of coast line on the Pacific Ocean, with our great trans-continental roads, bridging the Pacific within five or six days of the Atlantic, with Hawaii and the Philippines a part of our national territory, and with the construction of the isthmian canal, our situation as regards the political and commercial possibilities of the future in the Pacific, is stronger than that of any other nation on the globe, with possibly one exception—namely, Russia.

Russia is in many respects the most powerful country in the world, and her policy, unlike that of the United States, is that of steady and persistent aggression. Russia carries into the commercial contests of business the same methods which she employs in war. She seeks ever to exceed her territory and augment her trade and power, first by the conquests of peace through adroit diplomacy and a business policy that is backed by the full power of her government, or if this fails, through an appeal to arms. Charles Emory Smith, former minister to Russia, in a recent article, says that the key to the Russian policy is expansion. While the other nations are concerned in preserving the present equilibrium, Russia is concerned in her own expansion. He declares that her diplomacy is ingenious, dexterous and unwearying.

It is against the tremendous power of Russia, controlled by an absolute czar and his able ministers, with a policy that permits of no criticism at home, no liberty of press or of speech, and which pursues its ends with slight regard to the means to be employed, that the United States must be measured in the coming contest for the Pacific.

It is commonly supposed that if the United States ever had another war it would be with Germany, especially as the German interests in South America appear largely to clash with those of the United States but the broader field of the Pacific, it would seem to be inevitable that the United States must be brought into conflict with Russia. This does not mean that we shall now or in the future be brought into actual war with either nation, but it is certain that in the great conflicts of commerce, we are to come into close competition with both countries. It certainly seems a strange evolution that republican America, with her free institutions, with her liberty of press and speech, with her great experiment to popular government, should be brought thus into competition with the two great governments which represent more than any other upon earth, the old principle of absolutism, and "the divine rights of kings." It would seem as if it was a contest between the old and the new, between absolutism and freedom. Both systems have their elements of strength as well as weakness, and in the coming struggle for the mastery of the Pacific they will have to undergo a severe test.

What that struggle may be is indicated by the preparations of Russia and Japan for war and the possibility that England and France might be drawn into the conflict if the resources of diplomacy fail to prevent war by a peaceful settlement of differences.

THE COW IN POLITICS.

In the republican politics of Wisconsin, the humble cow has played and is playing a leading part, says the Milwaukee News.

William Dempster Hoard was made governor of Wisconsin largely because of his unswerving allegiance to the cause of the cow.

Gov. Schofield's cow was his undoing.

John Colt Spooner, hailed at the dairyman's convention as "the friend of the cow," owes much of his greatness to his staunch stand in the senate in behalf of the mother of the steer.

Gov. R. M. La Follette also has ever been distinguished because of his love for the cow. On a thousand stumps he has extolled the beauty and virtue of the farmer's cow.

It was Gov. La Follette's administration for the cow and his desire to better its condition that led to legislation at the last session of the legislature requiring assessors to report to the state government the names and registered addresses of the owners of cows in Wisconsin.

There is no factionalism in Gov. La Follette's love for the cow. He had Senator Whitehead introduce the bill.

With the names of the owners of cows in his possession, the governor is now able to bring before them what he has accomplished and what he proposes to accomplish in making the lot of the farmer more endurable and incidentally the condition of the cow better.

The interests of the farmer and his cow are identical.

Whatever is of benefit to the farmer likewise is beneficial to his cow. The Wisconsin cow is, indeed, fortunate in having such friends—such faithful, considerate and unflinching friends.

This scoffing at the governor because he knows Shakespeare thoroughly is child's play. A man does have to be an ignoramus to be Governor and it is much to the credit of the Governor he knows Shakespeare after all this school book scandal.

Politics that students with political jobs who play football in fall days and study spare moments seems to be the feature of the latest move of the administration men at Madison. Mr. Fogg was elected anyway.

Considering that there is the possibility of a war in South America it is wonderful that Boston has not asked for a fleet to protect its port from a hostile invasion.

Madison and Milwaukee have been chosen as the two cities which are to be the places of the spreading of the true republican doctrines broadcast.

Japan may have considered that with a good supply of Yankee beef perhaps her troops might be able to lick all Russia.

Senator Spooner defends secretary Payne. Why should he not do so? Payne has not done wrong except to stop boodling.

Even if they do not teach medicine at West Point General Wood managed to get there just the same.

President Roosevelt should sheer up. Perhaps Indianapolis was only trying to "josh" him a little.

Tammany would not care what was written on the platform just so long as they controlled the candidates.

Smoot has issued his ultimatum and will not listen to a word of peaceful solution for his trouble.

At least Russia and Japan might ask Korea what inscription they would like on their tomb stone.

Mr. Cook is quietly working to organize his campaign and he may do some surprising stunts yet.

Japan is having great fun with Russia and is making all kinds of "thinks."

Why do not the Boston school teachers form a union for chewing gum.

Mr. Emil Baensch is still hard at work and the campaign has really begun.

One can almost believe the stories about those old time winters now days.

Is Mr. Lenroot to be the faction candidate or is it all a bluff?

Ten cent, map United States showing territory purchased from France. The colors will be those used for like denominations in general use.

HANNA AGAIN HONORED BY OHIO LEGISLATURE

Is Re-elected United States Senator by Unanimous Vote of the Republicans.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 12.—Marcus A. Hanna was re-elected to the United States senate by the unanimous vote of the Republican membership of the general assembly. Eighty-six representatives and twenty-nine senators cast their ballots for the statesman. The vote was the largest ever given a senatorial candidate by the Ohio legislature. In the senate Mr. Hanna's name was presented by Senator J. M. Schollenberger of Cleveland, who said such men are needed in the United States senate. He referred to Senator Hanna's work to secure the location of the inter-oceanic canal, and said Senator Hanna was needed for the rebuilding of the merchant marine, so that the great oceans may be traversed by "ships built upon American soil, from American material, by American artisans, carrying American trade and beneath the emblem of the Stars and Stripes." He referred also to the senator's work as a member of the Civic federation. In the house the name of Senator Hanna was presented by Representative F. W. Treadway of Cleveland, who paid him a glowing tribute. The twenty-four Democratic representatives and four senators voted for the choice of their last state convention, John H. Clarke of Cleveland.

MEN WILLING TO ARBITRATE

Bloomington Street Car Strikers Offer to Settle Trouble.

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 12.—To show that they are willing to accept arbitration, the street railway strikers turned their case over to the Business Men's association and the city council and agreed to accept any recommendation these bodies made to settle the strike. Every effort will be made to persuade the company to compromise, but there is small likelihood of success owing to the fact that the company has sent back all imported men and has more applications from non-union men than can be accepted.

Sir Wilfrid in reply said that the matter was one which concerned South Africa alone and he therefore could not see his way to interfere.

Edible Frogs.

The edible frog is considerably larger than the common frog, and, though rare in England, is common in Italy, France, and Germany; they are brought from the country to Vienna, 2,000 or 4,000 at a time, and are sold to the great dealers, who have conservatories for them. They are caught at night by means of lights and nets, or hooks baited with worms; in Switzerland, by long rakes, with dove-set teeth, which are thrown into the water and drawn suddenly out again.

ISLAND RULED BY WOMEN.

One Place on Earth Where Men Play Second Fiddle.

A remnant of the Seivis tribe of Indians inhabits the island of Tiboron in the Gulf of California, and is ruled entirely by the women. Formerly the tribe numbered about 5,000, but is now shrunken to a few hundred, living a life of almost complete isolation, and refusing to intermarry with any of the Indians of the main land. Food and fresh water are scarce on Tiboron but what is left of the tribe is healthy and vigorous, and has always maintained its independence, fighting valiantly for it when necessary. The woman is master of the household and a council of matrons is at the head of public affairs, the men having no voice in them. They have a nominal chief, who is a man, but he has no authority, and any assumption of it would bring the women about his ears like a nest of hornets. It does not say much for the wisdom of female government that the tribe is so rapidly dying off, but it would probably be no better with men at the head of its inconsiderable but rather interesting affairs.

SUGAR FACTORY FOR JANESVILLE

REQUIRED ACREAGE WILL BE SECURED FOR 1905.

WALTER HELMSON PROSPECTS

Reads Encouraging Letter from President Lawson, of Wisconsin Sugar Co.—Interesting Discussion.

"I have received a letter from Mr. Lawson, dated January 8," said Walter Helms in his discussion of sugar beet at the Twilight club meeting last evening. "In which he says that he is not able to take up the Janesville proposition at this time. However, as far as he has been able to ascertain, the farmers of Rock county who planted beets this year are well pleased with the experiment. The writer expresses his belief that he will be able to get the required acreage necessary to secure a factory for Janesville, for the season of 1905." "I think we can all say that that beats all," said the leader of the meeting, Mr. Lawson is the president of the Wisconsin Sugar Co. and his statement will be regarded as good news by everyone in Janesville and the county at large.

Shipped 6,700 Tons
During the past season a total of 6,700 tons has been shipped from the Janesville station, said the speaker. This crop was harvested off 460 acres and the average price received was $1.50 a ton, making a total revenue of $1,005,000. The growers of these figures represent only one-half of the beets grown in the county and the total revenue for Rock derived from beet growing this season is therefore in round numbers about $500,000.

Robert Slater's Crop
One of the best crops in the county was from two acres planted by Robert Slater at Avalon. Sixty-one tons were harvested, netting him $220. The returns from the ten acres on the Decker farm are not all in as the last shipments have just been made. George Coy raised a crop of heavy tonnage on heavily manured tobacco ground but the sugar-test was very low. The light sandy ground is the thing. Beets grown in such an ideal locality on the Madison road averaged 18.1 per cent, whereas the average test is 14. The Wisconsin Factory
Wisconsin has one beet sugar factory which will turn out ten or eleven million pounds of granulated sugar to be marketed for $500,000 cash. This means $300,000 for the growers. In 1902 69 pounds of sugar per capita was consumed making about 142,000,000 pounds for Wisconsin. It will therefore take the product of sixteen as many factories as we have now to supply our home market.

SEN. WHITEHEAD CONDEMNS ACTION

Of Yale Professors in Forwarding Remonstrance Against Adoption of Hay-Bunau Treaty.

Commenting on the petition asking that the senate defer formal ratification of the Hay-Hunau-Varela treaty, and that this government's action in Panama be subjected to careful and deliberate investigation, which document was signed by a coterie of Yale professors including Theodore S. Woolsey, professor of international law, Henry Wade Rogers, dean of the law school, and a half a score of others and forwarded to Senator Hoar, Senator John M. Whitehead, recently condemned these educators on radio matter last evening. Many of them, he said, were personal acquaintances of President Roosevelt and if they had anything to say and wanted an explanation of his stand in the Panama matter they should have gone to him long ago instead of making an open attack on him at this time. The president is an honest man. He is open to conviction. More than that he is a university graduate. "I tell you there is no cohesion among the more intelligent classes. They cannot be depended on in politics," Senator Whitehead was recently elected president of the Yale Alumni association of Wisconsin.

LITTLE MIRRORS THE BEST.

Large Glasses Do Not Reflect as Well as the Small Ones.

In the mirrors of to-day the light is reflected by a layer of silver or an amalgam of tin, but a proportion of light is lost in the process of reflection, and the image is less luminous than the original. The value of a looking-glass is usually estimated by the thickness of the glass because the thicker it is the stronger it must be. But speaking scientifically thick glasses are defective, because the outlines of the image reflected are less clearly defined. An ideal mirror is one with a perfectly flat surface. But it is only possible to obtain this result in comparatively small glasses. The larger glasses do not reflect a true image, because it is not possible to make them quite flat.

The World is Too Much With Us.
The world is too much with us; late and soon,
Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers;
Little we have in Nature that is ours;
We have given our hearts away, a sordid boon!
This Sea that bares her bosom to the moon;
This wind that will be howling at all hours;
And are up-gathered now like sleeping flowers;
For this, for everything, we are out of tune;
It moves us not—Great God! I'd rather be
A pagan suckled in a creed outworn;
So might I, standing on this pleasant lea,
Have glimpses that would make me less forlorn;
Have sight of Proteus—wearing from the sea,
Or hear old Triton blow his wreathed horn.

Last evening the annual ball of the Redell Clerks' union was held in Assembly hall. The floor committee composed of Frank Elder, Harry Morse, Fred Blakeley and Thomas Cantwell handled the large crowd to the best possible advantage and the music was furnished by Smith's orchestra. The large hall was filled with dancers, many guests coming from out of the city for the event.

Mrs. J. P. Baker yesterday afternoon entertained the ladies of the Afternoon Lecture club at her home on North High street. The afternoon was pleasantly spent in the favorite game and later delightful refreshments were served. Mrs. E. P. Doty was the winner of the prize of the afternoon.

Mr. William Buchanan and his son, Alexander Buchanan, last evening entertained twenty of their friends at their home, 58 Oakland avenue, in honor of Mr. John Dyer, who formerly lived here but now makes his home in Chicago. The evening was most pleasantly passed by the twenty invited guests.

This evening Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Harris will entertain several of their friends who live in the immediate neighborhood of their residence. MARZLUFF CASE CONTINUED; O'DONNELL AND GRIFFIN GET A CHANGE OF VENUE

Application for Reduced Bail is Denied by Judge Fifield in Car Robbery Case.

The Marzluff dog poisoning case which came up in municipal court this morning was adjourned until Friday forenoon at ten o'clock. After five hours of lengthy argument on the several motions made by the attorneys for O'Donnell and Griffin, Judge Fifield over-ruled them all this morning. The defense asked, and obtained a change of venue, alleging prejudice, and the case will be tried in circuit court some time in March. It is probable that the judge would grant no reduction of bail and the prisoners will probably continue to board with Sheriff Appleby.

To Sterilize Drinking Water.
Here is the latest recipe for sterilizing drinking water and killing off the typhoid germ: Put four drops of tincture of iodine in half a gallon of water and permit it to stand at least half an hour. By the end of that time it will be as harmless as distilled water. Many persons have not the facilities for making distilled water. Boiling it also entails a certain amount of trouble. In either case the water is flat and unpleasant to the taste. The few drops of iodine impart practically no taste in the amount of water they sterilize, and at the same time they answer every medicinal purpose.

Speaking Without a Tongue.
The power of speech can be retailed after a complete, as well as after partial, removal of the tongue. Mr. W. H. A. Jacobson, writing in the Practitioner, cites one of his own cases. A former English army surgeon had his entire tongue removed, and some few months after the operation was able to speak so distinctly as to give an interesting account of one of the most striking episodes of the Indian mutiny. He had been one of the surgeons in the force with which Sir Colin Campbell relieved the garrison of Lucknow.

Short and to the Point.
The register which an undergraduate signs on first entering his college does not provide much scope for humor, conscious or otherwise. He has only to give his name and address and the name and status of his father. There is, however, a story told of a more than usually zealous freshman who inserted in the column headed "Description of father" the terse and vivid sentence, "Old man with white whiskers."

MUTILATION OF LIBRARY BOOKS

MAGAZINES ARE ROBBED OF PICTURES AND GASHED.

MRS. L. S. BEST'S TROUBLES

More Stringent Rules Should Be Put Into Force for the Care of Library Books and Magazines.

"I think," said Mrs. Louise S. Best, the librarian, early, "that I shall be moved to write an article on 'The Trials of a Librarian,' being a librarian has its abuses as well as its pleasures."

"When I see a new magazine, or book even, many times, cut up and slashed, whole pages taken from the volume by readers who seem to have no idea of honor, I feel that the privilege of using the magazines should be denied them."

Magazines Cut Up.
"Every day we find that beautiful magazine illustrations have been cut entirely from the number, especially from the McClure's, Century and Harper's, whose frontispieces are always handsome. Sometimes the pictures are cut out with a knife and the cut is so deep that it runs through four or five successive pages."

But the worst thing is when they cut illustrations and whole pages of reading matter from the books. Why just let me show you an example." Mrs. Best removed a beautiful and expensive book from the shelf and showed where an entire page had been cut with jagged, uneven edges by some vandal whose sense of honor seemed dead, or totally lacking. In some magazines, the December number of the "Independent," for instance, pages were cut out with a knife.

Unable to Stop It.
"We cannot watch them," said Mrs. Best, "and so we have resorted to other measures. We have put a Public Library Stamp on every colored picture in the various magazines. And even that does not stop them. Other city libraries have resorted to stringent rules. They keep all the magazines at the librarian's desk and persons wishing to use the volumes must apply at the desk and leave their name and address."

Avoid Restrictions.
"But I should hate to make this rule here. Restrictions such as this take away all the pleasant and agreeable atmosphere of the library." Truly the life of a librarian is not all strewn with roses.

"NO ONE WILL GET THE DROP ON ME"

Says Game Warden Drafaht in Answer to Threats on His Life—Wordy Talk on Milwaukee St.

Game-warden Peter Drafaht, Charlie Lumb, a professional hunter and fisherman who lives in a shanty on the shores of Lake Koshkonong, and a creamery man from that locality, had a rather heated colloquy on Milwaukee street yesterday afternoon. The warden warned Lumb never again to reach for his hip pocket when he said "Hands up!" This was what Lumb did the last time he was arrested for illegal fishing but he claims he had no revolver on his person. In the course of the conversation it developed that the threats have been made on the warden's life the next time he interferes with law violators at the lake. "They won't get the drop on me," he said significantly, "and as for you, Lumb, I warn you that I am after you and I'll get you yet. No one can hunt and fish for a livelihood and live within the limits of the law." The men employed by the Sandusky firm are now working the river for carp and suckers with like nets. Warden Drafaht says that they have taken out 40,000 pounds this season.

Famous Jockeys.

Madden and Lane Lead English Riders & Fuller and Other Americans.

Several of the many American jockeys that have been riding in England and other European countries during the last season have returned to this country during the last few weeks. Each reports that in England particularly have our lads fallen below their previous records so far as landing winners is concerned. It is a difficult matter to fix on the cause of this state of affairs.

It did not fall to the lot of an American rider to win first honor in England.

OTTO MADDEN, PREMIER ENGLISH JOCKEY.

this year. Any opportunity that Danny Madden might have had to be at the top was missed after the automobile accident that so nearly resulted in his death.

Otto Madden rode the most winning mounts of any of the boys engaged on the English tracks. He won 154 races, although his percentage of wins in total mounts is less than that of his most powerful rival, Lane, who passed the Judge first on 149 occasions. Among Madden's best achievements was his successful fight for the Eclipse stakes.

Second to Madden in actual number of victories, although ahead of him in percentage, was W. Lane. The figures are: Madden, 154; percentage, 19.01; Lane, 149; percentage, 20.01.

Many horsemen are of opinion that Fuller, the jockey who performed well on the eastern tracks, will not repeat his success next year, as he is growing so rapidly that it will be impossible for him to make the weight on some of his mounts. Although this clever rider would be of great service to some of the big stables, so far none of the owners of large strings of horses have taken any pains to sign him for next season.

During the early part of the year Fuller could tip the scales at 104 pounds, but, despite his constant riding, he gradually grew heavier, and toward the latter part of the season his weight was 107 pounds.

In this respect Fuller is not the only one, as with him are Odum, W. Hicks, the colored rider; Trotter, Rice, Bullman and Coburn. All of these jockeys were popular and had a very successful season in the saddle, but their future is in doubt, as they have all shown a tendency to take on weight faster than they can remove it in safety.

Odum is the most popular rider on the eastern tracks, but so far there has been no great demand for his services next year, as many think that he will not be able to ride under 115 pounds. This would give him a chance to accept a mount about once or twice a day, and perhaps not at all.

W. Hicks, the colored rider, who made a name for himself at New Orleans last winter, began his career on a New York track as a lightweight in the neighborhood of 100 pounds. He has increased weight more than any other rider in the east and finished the year weighing close to 115 pounds. Bullman, who has been for several years riding at weights below 110 pounds, is also beginning to get heavy, and it required severe self denial to keep within the limits that would allow him to accept mounts toward the latter part of the season.

The Son of a Dictator.
Dolly Dillon, the first daughter of Sidney Dillon, sire of Lou Dillon, 1886, that reduced her record to 2:07 1/2 to wagon late last fall, has been sent to Locust Grove farm, Newmarket, Pa., to be bred to that grand old sire Dictator, 2:17. The famous son of Dictator, although now twenty-six years old, is vigorous and strong, and to all appearances he has ten years of usefulness yet before him. The foal by him from Dolly Dillon ought to be worth a small fortune.

CHAPTER X.

A CHANCE DECREE.

Mischance delayed the carriage of Beau Wilson in its journeying to Bloomsbury square. It had not appeared at that moment, far toward evening, when John Law, riding a trembling and dripping steed, came upon one side of this little open common and gazed anxiously across the space. He saw standing across from him a carriage, toward which he dashed. He swung open the carriage door, crying out, even before he saw the face within:

"Will! Will! I say, come out!" called he. "What mad trick is this? What—"

He saw indeed the face of Will Law inside the carriage, a face pale, melancholy, and yet firm.

"Get you back into the city!" cried Will Law. "This is no place for you, Jack."

"Boy! Are you mad, entirely mad?" cried Law, pushing his way directly into the carriage and reaching out with an arm of authority for the sword which he saw resting beside his brother against the seat. "No place for me! 'Tis no place for you, for either of us. Turn back. This foolishness must go no further!"

"It must go on now to the end," said Will Law, wearily. "Mr. Wilson's carriage is long past due."

"But you—what do you mean? You've had no hand in this. Even had you—why, boy, you would be spitted in an instant by this fellow."

"And would not that teach you to cease your mad pranks, and use to better purpose the talents God hath given you? Yours is the better chance, Jack."

"Peace!" cried John Law, tears starting to his eyes. "I'll not argue that. Driver, turn back for home!"

The coachman at the box (flushed his hat with a puzzled air. "I beg pardon, sir," said he, "but I was under orders of the gentleman inside."

"You were sent for Mr. John Law."

"For Mr. Law—"

"But I am John Law, sirrah!"

"You are both Mr. Law? Well, sir, I scarce know which of you is the proper Mr. Law. But I must say that here comes a coach drove fast enough, and perhaps this is the gentleman I was to wait for, according to the first Mr. Law, sir."

"He is coming, then," cried John Law, angrily. "I'll see into this pretty meeting. If this devil's own fool is to have a crossing of steel, I'll fair accommodate him, and we'll look into the reasons for it later. Sit ye down! Be quiet, Will, boy, I say!"

With one leap he sprang from the carriage, leaving Will half dazed and limp within.

Even as he left the carriage step, he found himself confronted with an adversary eager as himself; for at that instant Beau Wilson was hastening from his coach. Vain, weak and pompous in a way, yet lacking not in a certain personal valor, Beau Wilson stopped not for his seconds, hurried not to catch the other's speech, but himself strode madly onward, his pony raised slightly, as though he had lost all care and dignity and desired nothing so much as to stab his enemy as swiftly as might be.

It would have mattered nothing now to this Highlander, this fighting Argyle, what had been the reason animating his opponent. It was enough that he saw a weapon, bared. Too late then, to reason with John Law, "Beau" Law of Edinboro, "Jessamy" Law, the best blade and the coolest head in all the schools of arms that taught him fence.

For a moment Law paused and raised his point, whether in query or in salute the onlookers scarce could tell. Sure it was that Wilson was the first to fall into the assault. Scarce pausing in his stride, he came on blindly, and, raising his own point, lunged straight for his opponent's breast. Sad enough was the fate which impelled him to do this thing.

It was over in an instant. It could not be said that there was an actual encounter. The sidestep of the young Highlander was soft as that of a panther, as quick, and yet as full of savagery. The whipping over his wrist, the gliding, twining, clinging of his blade against that of his enemy was so swift that eye could scarce have followed it. The eye of Beau Wilson was too slow to catch it or to guard.

He never stopped the riposte, and indeed was too late to attempt any guard. Pierced through the body, Wilson staggered back, clapping his hands against his chest. Over his face there swept a swift series of changes. Anger faded to chagrin, that to surprise, surprise to fright, and that to gentleness.

"Sir," said he, "you've hit me fair, and very hard. I pray you, some friend, give me an arm."

And so they led him to his carriage, and took him home a corpse. Once more the code of the time had found its victim.

Law turned away from the coach of his slain opponent, turned away with a face stern and full of trouble. Many things resolved themselves in his mind as he stepped slowly towards the carriage, in which his brother still sat wringing his hands in an agony of perturbation.

"Jack, Jack!" cried Will Law, "Oh, heavens! You have killed him! You have killed a man! What shall we do?"

Law raised his head and looked his brother in the face, but seemed scarce to hear him. Half mechanically he was fumbling in the side pocket of his coat. He drew forth from it now a peculiar object, at which he gazed intently and half in curiosity. It was the little beaded shoe of the Indian woman, the very object over which this ill-fated quarrel had arisen, and which now seemed so curiously to intermingle itself with his affairs.

"Twas a slight shield enough," he said slowly to himself, "yet it served. But for this little piece of hide, methinks there might be two of us going home to-day to take somewhat of rest."

CHAPTER XI.

FOR FELONY.

Late in the afternoon of the day following the encounter in Bloomsbury square, a little group of excited loiterers filled the entrance and passage way at 59 Bradwell street, the former lodgings of the two young gentlemen from Scotland. The motley assemblage seemed for the most part to make merry at the expense of a certain messenger boy, who wore a long wicker box, which presently he shifted from his shoulder to a more convenient resting place on the curb.

"Do 'ee look at 'em," said one ancient dame. "He! he! Hant a parcel of fine clothes for the tall gentleman was up in third floor! He! he! Clothes for Mr. Law, indeed?"

"Fine clothes, eh?" cried another, a portly dame of certain years. "Much the clothes he'll need where he's gone."

"Yes, indeed, that he will na. Bad luck 'twas to Mary Cullen as took in into her house. Now she's no lodging money for her rooms, and her lodgers be both in Newgate; least ways, one of 'em."

"Ah now, 'tis a pity for Mary Cullen, she do need the money so much—"

"Shut ye all your mouths, the lot of you," cried Mary Cullen herself, appearing at the door. "Tis not she needing the little money, for she has it right here in the corner of her apron. Every silver Mary Cullen's young men said they'd pay they paid, like the gentlemen they were. I'll warrant the raggle of ye would do well to make out fine as Mary Cullen hath."

"Oh, now, is that true, Mary Cullen?" said a voice. "'Twas said that these two were noble folk come here for the sport of it."

"What else but true? Do you never know the look of gentry? My fakes, I'll warrant the young gentleman is back within a fortnight. His brother, o'clock of the afternoon. We shall see, we shall see."

"Sir," said the jailer, approaching the prisoner and his brother, who both remained in the detention room, "I had had arrived bearing a parcel for John Law, Esquire. 'Tis not within possibility that you have these goods, but we would know what disposition we shall make of them."

"By my faith!" cried Law, "I had entirely forgot my haberdasher."

The jailer stood on one foot and gave a cough, unnecessarily loud but sufficiently significant. It was enough for the quick wit of Law.

"There was 50 sovereigns on the charge list," said the jailer.

"Sixty sovereigns, I heard you say distinctly," replied Law. "Will, give me thy purse, man!"

Will Law obeyed automatically.

"There," said John Law to the jailer. "I am sure the garments will be very proper. Is it not all very proper?"

The turnkey looked calmly into the face of his prisoner and as calmly replied: "It is, sir, as you say, very proper."

"Will," said Law to his brother, who had scarce moved during all this, "come, cheer up! One would think 'twas thyself was to be inmate here, and not another."

Will Law burst into tears.

"God knows, 'twere better myself, and not thee, Jack," he said.

"Pish! boy, no more of that! 'Twas an chance would have it. I'm never meant for staying here. Come, take this letter, as I said, and make haste to carry it. 'Twill serve nothing to have you moping here. Fare you well, and see that you sleep sound."

Will Law turned, obedient as ever to the commands of the superior mind. He passed out through the heavily-guarded door as the turnkey swung it for him; passed out, turned and looked back. He saw his brother standing there, easy, calm, indifferent, a splendid figure of a man.

Bright's Disease and Diabetes News

San Francisco, Nov. 23, 1903.
To the Editor of the Wisconsin.

Dear Sir:—For many years an editor myself, I address you by request and as a simple duty. A great discovery has been made in this city. It is fraught with so much importance, and yet is so hard to believe, that those who are personally cognizant should add the weight of their influence, be it great or small.

I not only know by contact with many of the beneficiaries, but was myself rescued from Bright's disease by it. The cure has been found, and the difficulty in believing it is costing many lives. It is astounding how far our prejudices carry us. But the great fact is here, and acceptance means recovery.

After my own unexpected release I wouldn't let my friends rest and several took the treatment and recovered. One was Charles F. Wacker, the Sixth Street merchant. He had Diabetes and thought he was going to die. He ate well and passed for a $5,000 policy.

I say to you as a brother editor that those of your friends who have Diabetes or Bright's disease, and every one knows of some, that they can recover. I will be glad as of many survivors out here to give you further information.

Yours &c.,
CHAS. H. ENGELKE.

SOLVED THE SERVANT PROBLEM.

Delaware Pastor Uses a Shotgun for Emphasis.

"Take a double-barrelled shotgun and tell her you will blow her head off!"

This is the solution of the servant problem, as discovered and found practicable by Rev. Francis C. Blackiston, a Methodist Episcopal minister of Clayton. So pleased were 12 jury-men to learn the solution of the problem that they found that it was justifiable.

Bessie York, a maid servant, had the minister arrested on the serious charge of threatening her life. The state produced a number of witnesses who corroborated her story to the effect that the reverend gentleman pointed a double-barrelled shotgun at her and threatened to blow her head off.

Rev. Blackiston pleaded his case for himself. He said:

"Gentlemen of the jury, I had to make my home safe. Let each of you imagine himself forced to contend with a bad woman, threatening and abusive. Knowing that my gun would serve to 'bluff' her, I took it with me when I went to the door. Wouldn't you, every one of you, have done the same thing?"

"And, gentlemen, think of my wife and children! Send me to prison and they will go without food. Surely you will have mercy. You are fair men. I'm confident that you'll mete out justice, and will never have me before you again."

The jury deliberated 12 minutes, and found a verdict of not guilty.—New York Journal.

A Duck Born to Glory.

An Irishman, who, much to his wife's sorrow, had got into the company of men who managed cock fights, determined to raise some game roosters for himself. So he got some prize eggs and put them under the old hen in the back yard.

In order to teach him a lesson and discourage his growing vice, his wife removed the prize eggs from under the unsuspecting hen, and put in their place some duck eggs.

Some weeks later the wife heard a commotion in the woodshed. She rushed out and there stood Pat watching with delight the first efforts of a newly hatched duck to waddle.

"Bridget, Bridget, will ye look at the fut on him? Suro a bird twice his size couldn't trip him!"

Wasn't Sure About It.

Mr. Dennis was endeavoring to the best of his ability to give the doctor a faithful account of his wife's symptoms, but he found it up-hill work.

"You say she has a cough," said the doctor. "Is it a hollow cough?"

Mr. Dennis cast his eyes to the ceiling and then down to the ground, but found no help anywhere.

"It may be a hollow cough," he said, humbly, "but there's a great resemblance to the sound of it, anyway."—Montreal Herald.

WARNS INDIANA BOYS AGAINST LARGE CITIES

State Board of Public Instruction
Seeks to Stem the Tide of Emigration From the Country.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 12.—"The farmer boy of northern Indiana should beware of Chicago."

This is one of the statements in an official bulletin which is being sent to teachers all over Indiana by the state board of public instruction in an attempt to stem the tide of emigration of farmer boys to the great cities of the country.

The state board determined on its action after receiving statistics showing estimates of the number of boys who have deserted the farm for the city during the last few years. It believes the vitality of the state is being sapped and will at once begin a crusade to stop the movement.

"Too many boys from the farms are seeking openings in Chicago, St. Louis and the other large cities of the West," the bulletin continues. "Personal investigations have brought to light the fact that three-fourths of the boys who have migrated to the cities in the last five years have been unsuccessful in their undertakings, many having been forced almost into the unemployed class."

The bulletin then specifies Chicago, and deprecates the fact that that city is drawing all the boys from the farms in the northern part of the state, and continues:

"It will be a sad day for our national life when all our young men farmers come to town, when the small, well cultivated homesteads give way to big landed estates."

The teachers in all the public schools of the country are urged to use all the influence in their power to make their pupils familiar with the hardships of city life and the few chances for them to get started in business in the great centers of industry. They are also urged to make their schoolroom busy workshops where the nobility of honest toil may be taught.

Leon Soder, a brother-in-law of Joseph Blaise, the young German whose lifeless body was found at the base of a high cliff in San Francisco, has been arrested upon suspicion of having committed the murder. The evidence against Soder is circumstantial, but it has been ascertained that within a month he had induced Blaise to take out two insurance policies on his life, one for $3,000 with Mrs. Blaise as beneficiary, and another for $5,000 accident insurance which names Soder as beneficiary.
